Peter Franklin, Palaeographer

Problems with Latin or Old Handwriting?

I read records of all kinds for family and local historians, working from attachments sent by email or photocopies sent by post, and can translate your awkward document or transcribe it if it is already in English and the handwriting makes it difficult to read.

I edited 'The Taxpayers of Medieval Gloucestershire' (Alan Sutton Publishing), have a Ph.D. for my work on the manorial records of Thornbury, and have read many later documents for clients, especially wills and other probate records.

Gloucestershire House Histories

The heritage of our past can be uniquely told through the history of our houses and the people who made them their homes. Whether they be humble cottages, terraced houses or prominent country mansions, each will have a rich history within its community.

I have been researching local and family history in Gloucestershire Archives since 1975 and offer a bespoke house history research service.

Are you seeking a professional Archival agent?

We are two qualified archivists who have over twenty years combined experience of working in Archives, predominantly at our local Gloucestershire Office. We offer a professional research service and documentary analysis. We can also bring the documents to you by undertaking photography of documents on your behalf.

Our research service includes identifying, investigating and analysing documents relating to any subject as required. Examples of previous work include assessments of sites of archaeological interest; histories of houses and other buildings; local history research by subject and/or place and genealogy. We also provide transcriptions of documents in Latin and English and palaeography advice.

Hourly and daily rates available; bespoke quotations provided on request. We are willing to travel to any UK based archive (expenses charged for non-Gloucestershire locations). As well as considering any archival research we can also offer tailored talks and workshops and a records consultancy service. For a quote and more information please contact us on shorter.timlin@gmail.com or see our Facebook page at www.facebook.com/ShorterTimlin
